Sentiment Analysis Summary:

- Out of all the analyzed reviews, approximately 88% of the reviews are positive, indicating that most customers are satisfied with the products. Around 10% of the reviews are negative, while only a small percentage are neutral.
- From analyzing the negative reviews, customers mostly complain about poor taste, stale or low-quality products, and items not matching their expectations. Some reviews also mention issues related to the delivery or product availability.
- One surprising observation was the very high number of positive reviews compared to negative ones, showing strong overall customer satisfaction.
- Based on these findings, I would recommended that the business should focus on improving product quality, freshness, and accurate product descriptions to reduce customer dissatisfaction.
